

Travelling by car

The parking possibilities at the Nieuw Amsterdam head office building are limited. It is therefore preferable to travel to Nieuw Amsterdam by public transport. If you plan to come by car, then you can use the parking garages displayed in the picture below.

We advise to use parking garage 6 Pathé Arena, De corridor 11, Amsterdam Zuid-Oost.

Travelling by public transport

How does travelling work in Holland?

The OV-chip card is the ticket for public transport in the Netherlands. You can travel on trains, trams, buses and metros with a single ticket. An OV-chip card can be bought at the train station or pre-ordered via internet.

Load before you travel

You will need to load the card before you start your journey. You can do this with money, which means you will be travelling on credit and will pay per kilometer travelled. Or you can do it with a travel product, such as a season ticket for commuting or a discount ticket for off-peak travel.

Checking in

You must always check in and out with an OV-chip card. At the start of your journey, hold your card against the screen on a gate or card reader. Your card will be checked to ensure you have a valid travel product or sufficient credit. Then the gate will open, or the card reader will beep to confirm.

Checking out

At the end of your journey, or when you transfer to another mode of transport, hold your card against the screen on a gate or card reader. The card reader will check whether you have travelled using a travel product or on credit. If you have travelled on credit, the card reader will display the cost of your journey. The boarding fare, minus the cost of your journey, will be returned to your card. Don't forget to check out! Otherwise you will lose your full boarding fare.
